They will know all of the fruits of their separation. In the polarity of light and dark, of good and evil, their innocence is lost and they shall know all there is without grace, but with greater effort. They will struggle to climb their way out of the chaos by their slow and deliberate reconstruction.

“They will not have love but learn to develop it as well as their love and respect for all life, through the lower order of life they have chosen. They will work to bring divine essence to arise within the loins of the base and unholy bodies they have come to cherish.

“Henceforth, it shall be by my love and memory of those that have fallen, they will come to remember themselves through the discovery of what has been lost. They will return and return again until all that has been lost in this world of illusion is found. Then and only then, will they have the opportunity to rejoin their stellar halves and be whole again...to ascend to the love and light of unity and neutrality, as full rehabilitated members of our family.

“It will be from their choice that they no longer know us. They will come to know death and birth and through it they will know what is good and holy by the sweat of their brow. Then they will count the hours of their passing and lament, and then shall they know the value of it. It will develop, and build eventually to sustain the necessary vibrations. By their efforts they shall realize the glory that is unity with the whole. So let it be said, so let it be done.”

CRAZYFOX PUBLICATIONS, LLC

Crazyfox Publications, LLC formed in New York State in 2006 to facilitate the spreading of spiritual truths and wisdom in books for all of the people in the world at a time when little of what would be called wisdom still exists. The world has grown harsh, crass and bent on materialistic pursuits. With saber rattling and actual military conflicts raging, the instability of financial and political systems threatens life as we know it. There is little for anyone to count on in the way of real support and the all but forgotten sense of the real meaning of life as well as the heart felt values that were once held in high esteem. Crazyfox Publications LLC is 'crazy like a fox' seeking after the lost and buried treasures that still exist in the world and serves to refresh the public mind of what is worth seeking after, the true adventures of the exaltation of the spirit through that which is written down in books which offer hope for a better life here on Earth.

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Michael E. Morgan has been a pragmatic engineer for over thirty-five years. In his first book, The Emerald Covenant, he tells of his mind shattering spiritual encounter with God that destroyed his assumptions about reality, propelled him into other dimensions, and changed his life forever. The Covenant also revealed a ten-year journey with his disembodied spirit guide, Yokar, a wise and compassionate ascended master from the realm of Stellar Mind who trained and prepared him for other spiritual tasks on the earth.

In this, his latest work, The Adventures of God, he reveals his second encounter with God, the enormous task given him from God to tell the story of The Creator from the beginning down to the present. He is also preparing to publish other works, which include a series of volumes on Yokar's teachings entitled, In the Footsteps of the Master, Conversations with an Ascended Spirit.

The Adventures of God is truly a first of a kind revelation filled with a wonderful new perspective on the Creator that offers the reader a closer more personal experience of God that can restore the faith and hope in everyone for a better life here on Earth.

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

Many people may fantasize about writing a book in their life, but have little or no experience of the process. When they realize how much work and perseverance it takes, they quickly drop the idea. The truth is, it takes a lot of personal fortitude and perseverance, courage and faith in one's self to accomplish the task, but one never really writes a book alone, and this book was no exception.

First, I must drop to my knees in humble gratitude for the honor and the blessings bestowed upon me from The Most High God Himself to be the one to write His story. He worked with me night and day to help me get it right. Though it was and is an awesome task, I felt confident with Him beside me in the process. Without His help there would be no story. Only He knew what actually happened so long ago.

It also happened with the help of many especially talented people that worked in the shadows or behind the scenes and there are many, who I will not specifically name, but contributed either knowingly or unknowingly and to them I also give thanks.

I also want to acknowledge those people who are special to me and without their help this book would not be possible. My partner, best friend and light in my life, Nala, who supported and stood by me when I had nothing, shared my awe and wonder, and made the words grammatically correct, and did I mention her insane typing speed. Then to mention my good friend, Jay Beber, for his brilliance and technical expertise in graphic design helped with the layout and cover design. And finally, my good friend, Alan Dodds, for his constant support, encouragement and untiring efforts to rally support through his computer networking skills.

Introduction

Perhaps it is significant that God has chosen to speak through someone at this time to make sure things remain on track here. The author believes it is the sign that everyone is looking for. The fact that He has chosen to speak to us confirms that it is the time of tribulation, but, moreover, His contact means we stand on the threshold of a miraculous time and a turning point for humanity. It seems clear that there are dark forces operating to prevent any further understanding by creating confusion and doubt and causing a further entrenchment of our consciousness into the illusion here.

The author believes that God's story reveals the nature of the Supreme Creator in a way that has not been presented before. It indicates a wonderful and most important aspect that He has brought forth -- the aspect of unconditional love and compassion along with free will, which we also represent through our basic nature as soul imprints from Stellar Mind.

More importantly, as animal hybrids here hosting a soul, we have the opportunity to raise the vibration here up to the level of the Most High God and finally resolve the issue of the fall. By using our being to express love, compassion and free will here, we extend His way into the lower realms and thus create our own atonement for our part in the separation from the realm of the Most High.

I always had an interest in spiritual subjects, and as a young man questioned everything. I was not satisfied with church rhetoric and simple dogma. I wanted to know God personally. Then that opportunity arose when, many years ago, a profound spiritual experience changed my life forever. After some fasting, yoga and meditation, I had a near death experience. I left my body and spent three days with God!

Later I wrote a book, The Emerald Covenant, where I related that experience with Him. The following are some passages taken from that text describing the amazing exchange I had with Him. I want you to know something of what it is like to be with Him.

‘I began to feel a new love growing. I felt my love for my brothers and sisters on the Earth. I began to explore their agony and their loneliness. I marveled at their ignorance. I turned to God and said, “you know, it’s amazing to me, that nobody knows You down there. I can’t think of anyone in my life there who has the slightest idea of what You are all about.”

“A few have known me. But it always brings difficulty. That’s why I send teachers once in a while, to remind them. We don’t want them to get too far away. So tell me what you have growing in your heart”.

“Well, I’ve been feeling the need to share with them what You are all about. Their finding out the truth about You is more important to me than being with You.”

I gulped. Suddenly I knew everything was going to change between us.

“I love You completely and that will never change, I said. But they don’t know You like I now do and that has to change!”

“What you are asking for is a serious step. You want to serve as a teacher from the highest realm. It will change our relationship forever. It will mean a deeper responsibility for you. The path you are now choosing is a thorny path. There are others who will teach. You don’t have to worry about them on Earth. They will come around eventually.

“What you ask will threaten the very essence of our connection. It will mean that you have to become physical again. The Earth is not like this place. It will be easy to forget what you have learned here. If you go back now, you will suffer again. You will become unconscious again. You will even deny me again.”

“I want to be a Gate Keeper, a watcher for You at the edge of the darkness. I want to look out for those who, by their actions, define a readiness to embrace the truth about You. With this act, I will feel that I can give back to you, something of what You have so graciously given to me...please Lord.”

“You don’t have to do anything for me, just remain with me, that is enough.”

“You’re wrong about me. I will never forget You, let alone deny You. Trust me, Lord. Let me carry Your Light to the edge of the darkness.”

“So, you will leave me then, for the sake of the ignorant?”

“We won’t be apart, Lord. I will keep You in my heart at all times. In my heart, You will guide me.”

“You still don’t understand, do you? This realm is far from the physical world, worlds upon worlds, descending into darkness. Your odds are slim indeed, but you are just like the others. Your love for your brothers and sisters is commendable and for that I will reward you. Go now.”

He was right of course! It was only days later, after returning to physical life, I denied the whole experience as nothing but a psychotic break from my fear of death and dying. But I remembered his words and laughed at myself and cried about his wisdom. Then I realized the truth of this path. I would be on my own here. It was up to me to trust in that experience with Him and make it real for myself without His help. That would make me strong and worthy of being a teacher of the highest realm.

Now, thirty-two years later, while going to bed late one night, I felt peculiar and had trouble sleeping. I decided to use some breathing exercises I learned over the years to relax my mind and body. Then suddenly, the room filled with a very bright light, a familiar and loving light. My body shook with energy as I became excited to see and feel Him again, The Most High God was near. Tears rolled down my cheeks like rivers. I felt so joyous to experience Him so close. He greeted me warmly and softly, caressing me like a young child. Then He declared He wanted me to write His story.

I sobbed uncontrollably. I was so overcome with emotion I could not speak. I trembled at the thought of it and wondered whether I could accomplish such a momentous task. I felt his love and total confidence penetrating me along with His friendship and trust. He reassured me not to worry. He would be with me the whole way to support me. And so, I began.

Writing this book was difficult and continues to be so, but I was called and I agreed. I have written it with a profound love, compassion and devotion to both my brothers and sisters here, but mostly out of my love for the Most High God. The story is all His, but my part is a deep desire to convey the words of a loving and compassionate Creator, a very personal God, who is my friend.

I am not anyone special, but I did have a burning desire to meet Him above all else. In that experience, I have learned from Him that anyone can approach Him, as I managed to do, if they put Him first above all else. There is no need for any interceding influence. Having said that let me prepare you for the greatest story you have ever heard or read.

In the world of man, all stories have two basic qualities, that is, there is always a beginning and an end. This is probably due to the fact man likes to have the comfort of knowing how something began as well as the comfort to know how it will end with the preference, of course, that all will live happily ever after.

In the spiritual realm, it's a little different. The form seems to be spherical. The boundaries expand to the infinite and time moves in ever increasing circles, only to fold back again. This effect leaves no straight way of marking the passage of events. There is no single sun that can define the day from night, or the breakdown of a day into hours and minutes. So everything that happens...happens at once.

Stories told about the adventures of men also define a place or direction where the events in the story occur or unfold. This story doesn't occur on the earth, although at some point, it will involve the earth. This story then really belongs to a region commonly known as heaven, which in man's perspective has an upward direction.

So, even as those ancient scribes began the story of the beginning of the world with, "in the beginning", this story will also, for the sake of the reader's mind. In this way, the author wishes to keep the mind of the reader from almost certain torture as to how it all started. As to a place and direction, there is no up or down, left or right in heaven, no specific point where it could be said that it all started. Since this is a story about God, it must begin from the place of nothingness.

How does one begin a story from nothing? Nothing implies there is no one to observe the transition from nothing to something. Still, the whole purpose of this story is to bring some understanding of that mysterious aspect, which goes beyond the finite and on to the infinite.

The Bible, the text widely accepted as some spiritual record of prehistory on the planet, has been translated into many languages and begins with, "in the beginning, God created the heavens and the earth". Like some Hebrew scholars, the author believes that this translation is not specifically accurate. Not that this work seeks to challenge the authenticity of any translation to date, but rather to consider other possibilities, while at the same time, recognizing all those who've gone before and labored with good intent to bring us this wonderful piece of divine literature.

Rather, it is the intent of this work to describe God's story even before the account in the aforementioned text, for the sake of offering a new and fresh perspective from God's point of view. It is believed by the author that this might serve in a positive way to give the reader some tools in which to better understand the Creator and His/Her ways. This is the object of focus in any spiritual seeker's perspective of life.

(Note to the reader: God must exist in a spiritual state, which is beyond polarity. Thus, the Supreme Being must possess both male and female properties despite the fact as a Creator God image would suggest in a male dominated world, a predominately male image or male quality like the "father figure" or patriarch.)

So, the literal translation seems to say..."in the beginning, those on high observed the heavens and the earth". Now this perspective is obviously very different! It seems to suggest that someone or something else existed at the same time as God! To tell the story of God requires an observer, otherwise known as, 'those on high' in this case. And without them, this adventure could not be told. So I leave the reader to ponder the possibilities. And so I humbly say, this is where His story begins.
